10 July 2020

Dear Chancellor,

We are leaders from different faith communities around the United Kingdom. We are writing to urge you to support our most vulnerable sisters and brothers worldwide as they seek to survive and rebuild from the coronavirus pandemic.

We welcome the efforts you made at the G20 finance ministers' meeting in April to reach an agreement for the temporary suspension of debts owed to other governments by those of the world's poorest 77 countries.

We now ask you to work with your fellow finance ministers at this month's G20 meeting to cancel, rather than merely suspend bilateral debt payments, as well as to urge the World Bank, International Monetary Fund and private creditors to cancel debt payments owed in 2020 and 2021 by these countries.

This is a critical and rapid means of ensuring that health workers in developing countries have the best chance of helping to defeat the coronavirus and that countries have the resources at hand to build back from the economic devastation the pandemic has wreaked – including by assisting communities already being hit by the effects of the climate crisis.

The immediate risks the coronavirus poses to poverty reduction efforts are both clear and shocking. In total, the World Bank estimates that between 71-100 million people risk falling into extreme poverty as a result of the pandemic. The World Food Programme forecasts that around 270 million people around the world will face acute food insecurity by the end of this year, a doubling of the approximately 130 million who suffered severe food shortages last year. The International Labour Organization predicts that up to 340 million jobs could be lost.

To insist on debt repayment in the face of the suffering caused by this pandemic would be an affront to the faith traditions that we represent.

Indeed, there is an overarching moral case for debt relief in many faiths.

Texts in both the Hebrew scriptures and the New Testament call for debt cancellation and for making good debt relationships every seven years, with a jubilee every fiftieth year. The Qur'an challenges debt by strongly criticising charging interest and speaks against prosecuting those who cannot repay debts back.

In his Easter Urbi et Orbi message of hope, Pope Francis called for the reduction of the debt that is "burdening the balance sheet of the poorest nations" and said earlier this year that it is not right "to demand or expect payment when the effect would be the imposition of political choices leading to hunger and despair for entire peoples."

These are not normal times and we must respond accordingly. This crisis has emphasised the need to stand together and debt cancellation represents an urgent and essential means of assisting the most vulnerable communities to withstand the suffering the pandemic will otherwise unnecessarily cause.

We urge you to show the ambition and leadership needed to meet this challenge.

Yours sincerely,
