

Message to a seafarer

Send a message in Semaphore

Semaphore is a way for seafarers to communicate over distances, such as from one ship to another ship or from a ship to the shore. Semaphore flags are usually divided diagonally and coloured red and yellow to make them more visible.

To communicate with semaphore, a flag is held in each hand and arms are then placed in specific positions to represent the letters of the alphabet.

Can you write a message to a seafarer using semaphore flags?

My message to a seafarer

Once you've written your message you can send it to us at:

info@stellamarismail.org or Stella Maris, 39 Eccleston Square, London, SW1V 1BX
